Introducing Picacho Style HOME COLLECTION

New Mexico Catalog has always believed in products that have a history and a sense of belonging. That is why we are introducing New Mexico Catalog's Home Collection named Picacho Style.

Picacho (meaning peak in Spanish) is a little village tucked under the majestic stature of Picacho Peak (shown above). Here, since 1850 generation after generation of farm families have called this fertile valley bordering along the Rio Grande River home.

Our connection to this valley was our grandfather JW Newberry who pioneered here from Tennessee bringing with him an eclectic style all his own. The design details of his home incorporated the New Mexican adobe, but was designed as a bungalow with gables and porches unlike the typical squared off adobe homes found in other communities. He had a fine Stickley rocker in the same room with a rough hewn Mexican pigskin chair, a large stone fireplace, not a kiva one, and lots of beautiful built-in cabinets and molding.

His farm was self-sufficient with the usual collection of chickens, pigs, and cows. Fresh vegetables flourished and, he planted some of the first pecan trees in this area. He was awarded for his large field corn and his desire to create and develop new and interesting varieties gave him many more attributes. He, my mother and grandmother truly lived the Good Life under the majestic peak of Picacho which they have preserved today for future generations.

Thus, Picacho Style was born--an eclectic blend of the Midwestern, Southern and New Mexican farmhouse lifestyles. It is about expressing your own personal style and a freedom to become self sufficient and independent with a spirit and attitude which reflect values, comfort, meaning and origin. We've made it simple for you to experience this casual, eclectic lifestyle, by pulling together a coordinated palette of color and patterns, so you can select items from any of our pages and put them together with confidence. And because we design, develop and make most of the items ourselves, we're able to offer you exceptional quality and value.

Welcome home to Picacho Style.

Authentic New Mexican Cuisine

New Mexico's Comfort Food

Tamales

The greatest tamales we've ever had are made right here in New Mexico. Ground corn is formed into a dough called masa and wrapped by hand in corn husks. Our tamales are filled with your choice of fresh New Mexico green chile and cheese; green chile and chicken; shredded pork in fresh New Mexico red chile sauce; all natural blue corn with green chile and cheese; vegetarian with green chile, squash, cheese, corn, onion, and made with vegetable oil; and, last but not by any means least, dulce (sweet) tamales, containing brown sugar, pineapples, raisins, and nuts. A traditional holiday treat, they are a meal in themselves. These tamales are large, not the little ones you see in other catalogs. They freeze well up to six months and are ready to serve within 15 minutes in the microwave or in a steamer. Order comes two dozen of your choice. These are the real thing. Shipped frozen via Federal Express. Please indicated your choice, each flavor sold in dozens. 55.00 for two dozen
